The following regulations apply to foreign applicants who intend to join the Program:

I – About the Program

The Elective Studies Program was created for undergraduate and graduate students coming from foreign universities, which may have agreements with the School or not, who intend to get to know the activities of the University of São Paulo School of Dentistry, through a specific activity schedule organized by the Committee itself with the support of other professors, departments, clinics and laboratories. Students in this Program are expected to spend the equivalent of a week or two (short-term exchange), depending on the call published by CRInt-FOUSP.

They may also join lectures, laboratory classes and clinical care activities as OBSERVERS, that is, without directly taking part of procedures.
- Students may also conduct research projects, once the USP professor who is responsible for them present prior approval by the FOUSP Ethics in Research Committee, in case of research with humans.
- The activity schedule cannot be extended.
